

CALM BEFORE THE STORM

Calling all babymooners! If you're looking for that last chance to relax, unwind and get away from work and those all important nesting chores before the pitter-patter of tiny feet, then the St Moritz Hotel, Cornwall, has the answer to your prayers

'The Calm Before The Storm' break has been specially designed to pamper and relax the expectant couple before the big day.

About-to-be parents can fly to nearby Newquay Airport if Mum is still in the first or second trimesters, or drive the few hours from the humdrum for some self-indulgence at the luxury St Moritz Hotel in Trebetherick, just a stone's throw from the stunning Daymer Bay in Cornwall, made famous recently by The Camerons.

Time together as a couple is top of the agenda, so on arrival guests are whisked away to one of the perfect rooms to settle in and snuggle up. Having made themselves comfy, they can look forward to a sumptuous meal at the hotel's renowned restaurant catering to satisfy all those cravings, and make the most of those precious luxuries like breakfast in bed the next day and a leisurely afternoon tea.

Mum and Dad-to-be will also be able to guarantee complete relaxation with the indulgent included treatments at the world famous 'Cowshed spa,' frequented by the likes of Laura Bailey and Donna Air. Pampering doesn't have to stop there though, Mum can take advantage of the specially formulated Udderly Gorgeous Maternity menu which can make sure that she's rubbed, scrubbed and neat and tidy for the due date.

"I know from personal experience that as the due date draws near the expectant couple need to get away from everything and spend some time together," says St Moritz Hotel Managing Director, Hugh Ridgway. "The Calm Before The Storm package is specially tailored to make sure that Mum-to-be can totally relax and indulge herself, but we don't forget Dad either. It's a wonderful weekend away for those who want to mark their last holiday together as a twosome with a truly special break."
